

Webrelease

July 4, 2008

The company announcement of February 27, 2008, released the agreement concerning Cheminova's purchase of the full ownership of the Swiss domiciled 50:50 joint venture company Pytech Chemicals GmbH from Dow AgroSciences. The acquisition has now been finalized.

Cheminova has now acquired full ownership of Pytech Chemicals GmbH

The definitive agreements concerning Cheminova's acquisition of Dow AgroSciences' part of the 50:50 joint venture company Pytech Chemicals GmbH have now been finalized, with July 1, 2008, as effective date.

Pytech Chemicals GmbH owns the commercial and registration rights to the product gamma-cyhalothrin which is the world's most active pyrethroid used for control of insects in several field- and speciality crops.

Pytech Chemicals GmbH will be fully consolidated into the Cheminova accounts from second half of 2008 and is expected to have only a minor positive impact on the 2008 results of Cheminova as mentioned in the company announcement of February 27, 2008.
